PREFACE

In 1912-13 the book entitled, "Parsons' Family, Descendants of Cornet Joseph Parsons," was published. There was no thought, at that time, of continuing the work in a second volume. Soon after the delivery of this book, however, many letters were received asking for further information and expressing regret that certain lines of descent had not been completed. With these letters came suggestions as to data etc. that with proper research and arrangement would provide material for a second volume the purpose of which would be to bring many more lines to the present generation.

The present volume is the result of research and correspondence continued since 1914. It represents years of close study to verify and arrange a very large amount of material. This has been a serious task, and yet a pleasure and a privilege; for whether as a member of a family, one prepares, or later reads such records, one cannot but realize an honest satisfaction in knowing the line from which one springs, and the lives and deeds of those united to one by ties of blood and family.

Early in 1917 the material collected would have made a book of about 400 pages. Steps were taken at that time to publish the volume as it then appeared, but this project, with so many others of that year, had to be set aside because of the war with Germany. The years since 1914 have been of tragic importance in the world's history. Many of the present generation served their country and the world in the cause of truth, righteousness, and humanity, and many gave the last full measure of devotion. An effort was made to secure records of such service to add to the historic value of this book. In the meantime the volume grew since 1917 to its present size of over 700 pages.

In arranging the material of this volume some perplexing problems had to be met in the effort to make it independent of, although virtually a continuation of, and supplementary to the first. Some historical matter could not be repeated, and biographical sketches of early ancestors could be retold only in condensed form. Sincere thanks are due to those who have aided in gathering and arranging data of their particular lines.

The book is presented to all kith and kin with the hope that the present generation may find the historic view along a line of worthy forebears a call and an inspiration for the future. To be well-born is an inestimable privilege. The backward trail may lead through miasmatic valleys or over hills and mountain tops, with inspiring views or along monotonous levels. But to the wise the quest will bring its own reward, if, avoiding the errors of the past, the reader will "carry on," building upon the achievements of those who have gone before.

HENRY PARSONS.

INTRODUCTION

The first volume has some reference to the Parsons Family in England and in the Colonies and has a biographical sketch of Joseph[1] Parsons, the emigrant from England, and of the witchcraft experiences of his wife, Mary (Bliss) Parsons, to all of which the reader is referred.

The following biographical data is chiefly taken from manuscripts left by the late Dr. Usher[6] Parsons to which I have had access through the kindness of his grand-nephew, Mr. Henry[8] Parsons (George,[7] William,[6] William,[5] Rev. Joseph,[4] Rev. Joseph,[3] Joseph[2] (Esquire), Cornet Joseph[1]) of New York City and Kennebunk, Me. It will be remembered that Dr. Usher Parsons was the surgeon on board the Lawrence, the flagship of Commodore Perry at the battle of Lake Erie. He practiced his profession in Providence, R. I., for many years thereafter and gave much time to historical research, in which he was aided by the late Sylvester Judd of Northampton as appears by a letter addressed by Judd to him dated Mar. 20, 1834.

(For sketch of Dr. Usher Parsons see pages 101-106.)

From these various sources we are told that Cornet Joseph Parsons was born about 1617, in England, and died 1683, aged about 66. He sailed from Gravesend, England, July 4, 1635, in the bark Transport of London, Edward Walker, Master (see Certificate in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 3, Oct., 1849, page 389). He was then about eighteen years of age, as appears by his testimony given several years later on making proof as witness to the deed dated July 15, 1636, by the Indians to William Pynchon and others to the land upon which is now the city of Springfield, Mass. (This deed is in N. E. Hist. & Gene. Reg., Vol. 15, p. 140.)

No mention is made of his residence in Springfield, from that time to 1646. During that ten years he was probably frequently at Hartford, Conn., and on Nov. 20, 1646, he married at Hartford, Mary Bliss, daughter of Thomas and Margaret Bliss, who had come from Belstone Parish, Devonshire, England, which county was the probable birthplace of Joseph Parsons, and which has given rise to the theory that they may have known each other as children in Devonshire.

Prior to his marriage in Springfield we find that a house lot and other lands were allotted to him in 1646, and about the same time Margaret Bliss (widow of Thomas) and her sons removed from Hartford to Springfield; also that in Jan., 1646, Joseph Parsons and Thomas Merrick were chosen surveyors in Springfield to lay out and make a certain road from Mill River to Long Meadow. In 1652 he was an assessor and selectman of Springfield. He was one of the original proprietors of Northampton and one of its first settlers in 1655. Mr. Judd writes to Dr. Usher Parsons in 1834 the result of his examination of the Northampton records as to Joseph Parsons in part as follows:

"His house lot of four acres though now divided into 9 or 10 homesteads still retains the old outlines. A part of it remained in the family until about 25 years ago. An adjoining lot which he purchased a few years after he came here is still owned by his descendants . . . . In March 1661 he was licensed to keep an ordinary, or house of entertainment in Northampton. In March 1663 divers persons 'in the soldering' in Northampton formed a company of Cavalry which was called the 'Hampshire Troop.' John Pynchon of Springfield was Captain. The other officers were a Lieutenant two quartermasters and a Cornet. William Allis of Hatfield was the first Cornet, a few years after, Joseph Parsons succeeded him, and always after this bore the title of Cornet. In 1667 Joseph Parsons united with the Church then under the pastoral care of Rev. Eleazur Mather. Joseph Parsons was one of the two persons in this town licensed to trade with the Indians and he not only traded with them but to some extent with the Whites. I suppose he gained much of his property by this Indian traffic. The fur trade in this region was then very lucrative. In 1662 Joseph Parsons took of Weakwangon and his wife a mortgage of Hockamain Meadow a peninsula connected with Hadley on the east side of the river to secure a debt which the Indians owed him.

"He sold this meadow, or his right and title, to the Hadley settlers. The mortgage and deed are on record in Springfield.

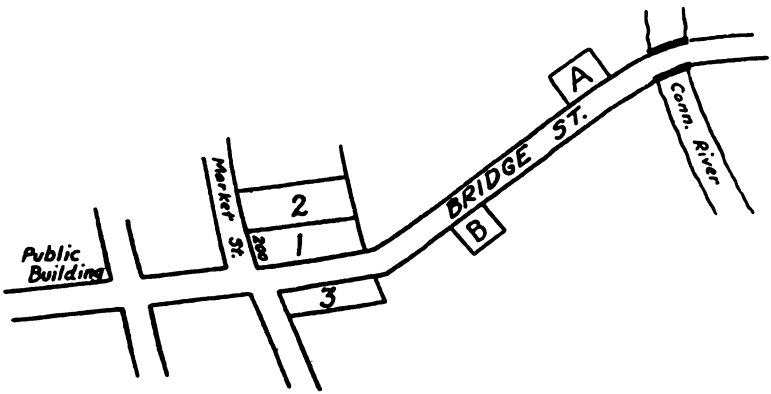
"He bought and sold lands in Waranoke (Westfield). He became the owner of much land in Northampton Meadow more than any other person. He purchased of various persons upwards of 100 acres of Upland meadow at a place called Pascommuck at the foot of the north end of Mount Tom. Some of his descendants now live on this land."

The following diagram of the house lots owned by Joseph Parsons in Northampton together with the memorandum as to the division among his sons is a part of the Usher Parsons manuscripts and was probably sent to him by Mr. Judd who speaks of the date about 1834.



MAP OF THE HOME LOTS OF THE FIRST SETTLERS OF NORTHAMPTON, COMPILED FROM THE EARLIEST TOWN RECORDS BY JAMES R. TRUMBULL

(Trumbull's History of Northampton, Vol. 1, has two maps, one entitled, "Map of Home Lots of the First Settlers compiled from the Earliest Town Records," and the other, "Map representing the present (1898) Topography of that part of Northampton occupied by its First Settlers."

From these maps it appears that lots Nos. 1 and 2 extended nearly to where the cemetery now is, and that No. 1 was divided later into ten building lots on Bridge Street, the old original house now standing being near the corner of Market Street.)

"No. 1 is the Original Home lot of Cornet Joseph Parsons about 53 or 54 rods long on the main street and 12 rods wide. Called 4 acres.

"In 1661 he purchased the lot No. 2 of his brother-in-law

John Bliss (who returned to Springfield) and in 1668 he purchased lot No. 3 on the other side of the street.

"In the division of his property in 1684 Joseph[2] had lot No. 3, Samuel had lot No. 2, John, South-west half of lot No. 1, including the old seat, Jonathan, north half of lot No. 1.

"Some years after, John sold his lot to Noah[3] and removed to a lot marked "A" near the river where he lived and died.

"Jonathan and his descendants occupied a part of lot No. 1 until about 20 years since. When Samuel removed to Connecticut he sold lot No. 2 to his nephew Josiah[3] Parsons son of Joseph[2], Esq., and his descendants still own it.

"Joseph[2] Parsons lived on lot No. 3 many years. He sold it in 1694. But about 20 years after it was purchased by Ebenezer[3] Parsons his son and his descendants occupied a part of it until a few years ago. Joseph[2] Parsons, Esq., lived at Springfield some years and when he returned to Northampton he settled in another part of the village on the south side of a stream called Mill River. His lots there fell to the share of his sons Noah and John. A part of the homestead is owned by these descendants. B is a large meadow lot of Cornet Joseph Parsons, still owned by his descendants."

(On lot No. 1, on Bridge Street, near Market Street, Cornet Joseph Parsons built in 1658 this house shown herein and where he lived until he removed to Springfield. It is still occupied by one of his descendants.)

"Josepii Parsons, Jr., son of Cornet Joseph (and afterwards Esquire) married Elizabeth Strong March 17, 1669 (1668-9 in old records). She was a daughter of John Strong Elder of the Church in Northampton, and usually called Elder John Strong. He was the ancester, says Mr. Judd of all the Strongs in the country. The late Gov. Strong was of the 5th generation or great-grandson. John Strong had 12 children. Elizabeth who married Joseph Parsons, Jr., was born at Windsor, Conn. Feb. 24, 1648 (1647-8 old records). They had 12 children. They lived in Northampton excepting a few years between 1702 & 1711 in which he resided in Springfield. They were members of the Church under the care of Rev. Solomon Stoddard. died Nov. 21, 1729 and she died July 22, 1736 on her son Josiah's record; (May 12, 1736 on the town records.) In the registry of deaths her name is by mistake printed Mehitable.

"The Will of Joseph Parsons, Esq., was proved Dec. 9, 1729. He had omitted to date it—but the witnesses testified that it was made "sometime the latter part of last Summer" and it was allowed to stand. He had given he says 100 pounds each to Joseph and David toward their education. He goes on to give the other six sons lands and personal estate to the same amount or near it. John, Ebenezer, Josiah and Noah had lands in Northampton, Daniel in Springfield, and Moses in Durham (Conn.). He had given the two daughters 30 pounds each. As to the rest of his property after the decease of himself and wife he gives the two daughters 70 pounds each and orders the remainder to be divided between the 8 sons, except Noah with whom he lived was to have the house and homestead at a certain price less doubtless than the actual value. He had probably given the sons lands many years before.

"Joseph Parsons, Esq., held the commission from Gov. Dudley of Captain of the Northampton Company of Militia, and was an active and enterprising man in business. He built a grist mill and saw mill in Northampton and owned one in Deerfield which he sold for meadow land. He dealt largely in tar and turpentine made in Northampton. He also dealt in boards and plank which he sent down the river and bartered for goods. In 1697 he and Col. John Pynchon erected iron works at Suffield where they for some time made large quantities of iron. The estimated cost of the iron works was 300 pounds which was a great undertaking for that day. He was interested in Mills in Springfield and owned land there. Probably a homestead for he resided there between 1700-1710 within which time he represented that town in the General Court. He also represented Northampton in 1693-4-6-1702-11-12-13-14-15-17-21 & 24. He was at times a Judge of the County Court. He was elected townsman or selectman in Northampton in the early part of his life during 9 years.

"After his return from Springfield to Northampton he relinquished much of his business to his sons and attended chiefly to his lands and to his duties as a Magistrate.

"His epitaph and his wife's were as follows:

"'Here lyeth the body of Joseph Parsons, Esqr. who deceased November yr. 29 A. D. 1729 aged 83 years'

"'Here lieth the body of Mrs. Elizabeth Parsons reliet of Joseph Parsons, Esq., who died May ye. 11 A. D. 1736 aged 89 years'

"Rev. Joseph[3] Parsons (son of Esquire Joseph) graduated at Harvard College 1697. He studied Theology with Increase Mather President of Harvard College . . . . He first settled in Lebanon, Conn. and living in a house which was some 50 years afterwards a part of the dwelling of Gov. Trumbull. He was ordained Nov. 27, 1700 and left his flock in 1708. His wife was the daughter of Benjamin Tompson the first Minister in Braintree. Her discontentedness in Lebanon caused him to remove to Boston where he had some estate left him by his father particularly a part of a house having the corner of Winter and Marlboro Streets. He was also owner of lands in Hubbardstown. He bought in 1714 land amounting to 1/20 of the 8 miles Square of Leicester, Mass. for 60 pounds. He inherited or purchased large parcels of land in Hubbardstown, Royalston, Rutland and Oakland in Worcester County. He preached in Boston 8 years and then was installed in Salisbury, Mass. West Church Nov. 26, 1718. He preached the Ordination Sermon of his son Joseph of Bradford and was the teacher in Theology of all his children who settled in the ministry . . . . .

"He was highly orthodox in his sentiments—more so than his sons who bordered upon Armenianism . . . .

"He died March 13, 1739 in the 69 years of his age. His wife took up her residence with her daughter Fogg of Kensington, N. H. where she dwelt 35 years after her husbands decease. She is represented as a lady of uncommon endowments possessed of a lively and cheerful disposition."

Rev. Joseph[4] Parsons of Bradford graduated in 1720 at Harvard College, was admitted to the Church in Salisbury Aug. 5, 1722, ordained at Bradford First Church June 7, 1726. His father preached the sermon. He married Frances Usher, daughter of Lieutenant-governor John Usher, the son of Hezekiah Usher and Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. Zachariah Symmes of

Charlestown, whose father and grandfather were named William Symmes.

He married a second wife, whose maiden name was Greenleaf, her first husband, Bacon; her second, Scott; her third, Parsons, and her fourth, Rev. Mr. Jewett of Rowley. Gov. Usher's wife was Elizabeth Allen, daughter of Gov. Samuel Allen, proprietor of Mason's Lands in New Hampshire.

He died May 4, 1765, in the 63d year of his age and the 39th of his ministry. His first wife died September 18, 1747, in her 43d year. They are both buried about one mile below Haverhill bridge, on the west side of Merrimac River, near the center of an old burying ground on the left side of the road leading to Newburyport. His house of worship was near this ground but was torn down in his day and a new house was erected near Haverhill bridge. His dwelling house was a few rods north of the burying ground and on the opposite or west side of the road.

Rev. Joseph[4] Parsons of Bradford studied theology with his father, Rev. Joseph of Salisbury. In Nov. 1720, he was invited to become a candidate for settlement in the town of Bradford which was at the time composed of the parish over which was settled in 1682 Mr. Zachariah Symmes, son of the Rev. Z. Symmes of Charlestown, and in 1708 his son, Thomas Symmes, was installed.

Feb. 18, 1726, Mr. Parsons was invited to settle and was ordained June 7, 1726. The library of Zachariah Symmes being inherited by his son Thomas came into the possession of Mr. Parsons as a present from Mrs. Thomas Symmes. She was a Tompson, sister of Mrs. Joseph[3] Parsons, the mother of Joseph of Bradford. Some of the books, bearing the names of both Symmes and of Joseph Parsons, came into my hands (Usher Parsons). In the margins and blank pages of these are many pieces written in Latin, which show him to have been very familiar with that language. Some notes are also written in Greek and some in Hebrew. He is represented by some aged persons who heard him preach as being a fine speaker and graceful orator. Of his respectable standing as a minister it is enough to say that he was the secretary of the Merimac Association of Ministers and was directed by the same to reply to the attacks that were made upon the doctrines which they preached. That he was called upon to preach the convention sermon in Boston, the Governor's election sermon and artillery sermon, and some ordination sermons, one of which was at the ordination of Rev. Samuel Webster of Salisbury. Copies of each of these, with the exception of the convention sermon, may be seen in Harvard College Library. The convention sermon, together with many others in manuscript, are bound into a volume, and are owned by Mrs. Samuel Pitkin of East Hartford. The handwriting is beautiful and exact. Rev. Gardener Perry, who has examined the parish records of Bradford, says he was a fine penman and kept the church records with uncommon elegance and accuracy.

A memorandum in said records stated that "the great earthquacke on the 29th of Oct. 1727 produced a great effect upon the minds of his people and was the means of awakening their attention to the things of religion."

During his ministry 288 were added to the church, 821 were baptized and 176 married.

The occasional sermons were preached in the following order:

1 Ordination of S. Webster, Aug. 12, 1741 . . . .

2 Artillery election sermon, June 4, 1744, being the day of their election of officers. Text: II Saml., chap. 17, verse 8, "Thy Father is a Man of War." It is dedicated to His Excellency William Shirley, Esq.

3 The Governor's election sermon, "preached in the audience of His Excellency (Sir Francis Bernard) his honor the Lieutenant-Governor (Thomas Hutchinson) and the honorable his majesty's Council and house of Representatives of the Province of Massachusetts Bay, New England, May 3, 1759 being the anniversary for the Election of his majesty's Council." Benjamin Lynde and William Brattle were voted in Council a Committee to request a copy for publication. Text: Esther, chap. 1:13.

4 Convention sermon, preached in 1755; Matt. 6, verses 14, 15 and 16. In this he recommended the formation of a theological library.

5 The reply in behalf of the Merimac Association was published about 1744. It was short and caustic.

6 Two discourses concerning the importance of the belief and profession of the gospel to eternal salvation, preached to his people and published by their desire in 1759. Text: Romans 10:8, 9. These sermons exhibit Armenian sentiments and there is little doubt that he inculcated the importance of good works more than the Calvanism of that day did. The following passage is extracted.

"Although true faith be the root of evangelical obedience, you are not hence to conclude that all your care is to be for faith and none at all how you live. The root indeed is to be manured and nourished with water, but the tender shoot above ground is to be defended from blasting winds and overbearing tempests; excresences are to be lopped off, hostile invaders are to be destroyed, and by much art and industry is the fruit to be made perfect. Jesus Christ and his Apostles, though they preached faith, preached obedience, too. They did not think it sufficient to urge a man to believe but urged them as much to practice."

Rev. William[4] Parsons, 3d son of Rev. Joseph[3] of Salisbury, was born 1711. Took his degree at Harvard 1735 and settled in Southampton, N. H. He connected the business of a shopkeeper or trader with his profession. After preaching 19 years he separated from his flock and removed to Gilmanton, N. H., 1768, and took up lands for lumber and farms. He also preached in adjoining towns. He was a great lover of music and made an organ himself that worked well. He was considered a moderate preacher. He married Sarah Burnham of Durham, N. H. She lived eleven months after him and died Dec. 1796. He lived on what is called Parsons Hill and died in Feb. 1796.

Rev. Joseph[5] Parsons of Brookfield, son of Rev. Joseph[4] of Bradford, graduated at Harvard College in 1752, was ordained in Brookfield First Parish, Nov. 23, 1757, married Sarah, daughter of Rev. Wareham Williams of Waltham, Nov. 23, 1763. He died Jan. 17, 1771, in the 38th year of his age and 14th of his ministry . . . . He was distinguished, says his biographer, for the vivacity of his descriptions, the accuracy of his reasonings and the persuasiveness of exhortations. A severe rheumatic affection afflicted him during three and a half years and caused his death. He was remarkable for a cheerfulness of manner and a vein of sportive wit in which he indulged to the last. Anecdotes are still preserved illustrative of these traits. He left one daughter, Sarah, wife of Samuel Pitkin, Esq., of East Hartford, a lady of fine mental endowments and refinement of manners. She is the only Parsons I have yet seen who took the least interest in tracing the genealogy of her family, a subject in which she seems to take an uncommon degree of pleasure. She has three children, a son, Col. Pitkin of East Hartford, Mrs. James F. Baldwin of Boston, and one daughter at home.

Her mother married Rev. Dr. Eliphalet Williams of East Hartford. She died Jan. 23, 1800, aged 62. Rev. Dr. Williams died in 1803 in his 77th year.

SAMUEL[5] PARSONS (Rev. Joseph[4], Rev. Joseph[3], Joseph[2], Cornet Joseph[1]) b. 1737 at Bradford, Mass., d. 1807, at Cornville, Me.

He was a house carpenter and served his apprenticeship in Kingston. He resided in Ipswich and Epping with his uncle Rev. William[4] Parsons in Gilmanton, N. H. He finally removed to Cornville, Me., and lived there with his son, and died there in 1807.

The following extracts from the wills of Rev. Joseph[3] Parsons of Salisbury and of Rev. Joseph[4] Parsons of Bradford are found in the Holton Manuscripts:

Will of Rev. Joseph[3] Parsons of Salisbury gives to his four sons Joseph, Samuel, William and John "All my land rights and divisions of land in ye township of Rutland in ye County of Worcester and province of Massachusetts Bay to have &c., . . . saving 100 acres of ye said lands to be first taken off for my eldest son Joseph which I give to him over and above his equal share with the rest."

Item 3. "To my daughter Elizabeth Fogg besides the 200 pounds given her at her marriage 1/5 part of all my estate in Salisbury personal and real," remaining after the death of his wife Elizabeth.

Item 4. Gives to wife Elizabeth all his estate in Salisbury, debts being paid and funeral expenses deducted, and his son John to be brought up from it till he takes his first degree in college.

Digitized by Google

Item 5. After wife's death all estate in Salisbury to be equally divided between his children, his daughter Elizabeth having 1/5 part.

Finally his wife Elizabeth and son Joseph joint Executors. Inventory, 1697 pounds 7 shillings; part of which was one negro woman, 90 pounds, and one negro man decrippled, 100 shillings.

The Will of Rev. Joseph[4] of Bradford, dated Apr. 27, 1764, proved Mar. 31, 1767, mentions wife Elizabeth, sons Joseph, Thomas, Samuel and John, daughters Frances and Sarah. Executors Joseph and Thomas.

At the fourth reunion of the Fogg Family at Boston, Mass., Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, 1905, a paper was read by Rev. Edmund Quincy Osgood on Rev. Jeremiah Fogg which contained the following extract:

"Mr. Fogg had not labored for any lengthy period in this Kensington parish when his marriage took place and a bride was ready to grace the newly built parsonage.

"On the 13th day of July, 1739, he took as his wife the only daughter of Rev. Joseph Parsons, the Minister of Rocky Hill Church in the neighboring town of Salisbury, Mass.

"The charming tradition is handed down to us that Parson Fogg rode to his new home over the Kensington hills and through the pine forests with his bride Elizabeth seated on the pillion behind him. It is also related that one of the deacons who had attended the wedding at Rocky Hill carried to the Parsonage in the same fashion a colored girl, Phyllis by name, one of the domestics in the Salisbury household, but was now to wait upon her young mistress in the cozy manse that had been made ready for her.

"In March, 1740, a few months after the marriage was solemnized, occurred the death of the bride's father, Rev. Joseph Parsons, whose widow came to live in the Fogg parsonage. She brought with her a colored man, already quite advanced in years, called Primus. According to Colonial Law both this man and the girl Phyllis ranked nominally as slaves. Primus indeed was the son of an African Chief. But in point of fact they were devoted servants in the family, attached to every member of it by ties of affection, regard and mutual service. Sometime before the Revolutionary War, Primus helped his master set out two Elms at a short distance from the house. One of these died about 1850, but the other is still standing."

She m. at Northampton, Mass., Oct. 4, 1781, Deacon Nehemiah Cleveland; b. in Canterbury, Mass., Apr. 5, 1753; d. in Skaneateles, N. Y., Oct. 25, 1843, aged 90 years; son of Nehemiah and Dinah Cleveland of Williamsburg, Mass. He was an officer in the Revolutionary War. (See record in the U. S. Pension Office.) They resided in Williamsburg, until 1817, when they moved to Skaneateles, N. Y. He was a deacon in the Congregational Church, and a farmer. A very interesting sketch of her life is in a pamphlet entitled "Our Patronymics," compiled by her granddaughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards[7] Gifford, published 1880.

In the Hunt Genealogy we find the following reference to her:

"Her mother was a Hunt and a sister of the late Dea. Ebenezer Hunt. Her parents had seven daughters; one attained the age of 99 years, another 98, and another 90.

"President Dwight, who presided over Yale College twenty-one years, was her playmate, and the late Gov. Caleb Strong her neighbor, and only a few years her senior. The preservation of her mental and physical faculties was unusual and wonderful. She delighted in the quotation of biblical precepts to a period of only a few weeks previous to her death.

"Her husband was a descendant of Moses Cleveland, who settled in Woburn, Mass. (about 1648; born at Ipswich, England, about 1624, and came to America about 1635); his lineage being Nehemiah[5], Nehemiah[4], Henry[3], Josiah[2], Moses[1]. He was related to Gen. Moses[5] Cleveland (Aaron[4], Josiah[3], Josiah[2], Moses[1]), who was born Jan. 29, 1754, at Canterbury, Conn.; was a soldier and officer in the Revolutionary War, and a lawyer and farmer at Canterbury. About 1795 he joined, with others, in the formation of the Connecticut Land Co., which bought the interests of the State of Connecticut in the Western Reserve in Ohio, and was active in its development and in the settlement of the city which bears his name. In 1888 a statue to the memory of Gen. Moses Cleveland as the founder of the City was erected in the Square of Cleveland."

We may add that President Grover Cleveland was of this family, his lineage being Grover[8], Richard Fally[7], William[6], Aaron[5], Aaron[4], Aaron[3], Aaron[2], Moses[1], born at Caldwell, N. J. Mar. 18, 1837.

DANIEL[3] PARSONS was an Innkeeper in Springfield, Mass. By the will of his father, Esq. Joseph[2], he received certain property in Springfield. (Vol. 1, pages 55 to 57.) His grandson, Zenas[5] Parsons, was the owner of the well-known "Parsons Tavern," situated in the southeast corner of what is now Court House Square, and is mentioned in the histories of Springfield and Northampton, and its picture, taken from a history of Springfield, is given herein. (See Vol. 1, pages 128 to 130.) On its site is a granite bowlder, having a bronze tablet with the following:

"Here stood the Parsons Tavern where Washington was entertained June 30, 1775, traveling in the saddle from Philadelphia to Cambridge to take command of the American forces.

24 GIDEON[5] PARSONS (Daniel[4], Daniel[3], Joseph[2], Cornet Joseph[1]), b. at Springfield, Mass., Feb. 24, 1739; d. Jan. 12, 1836, Town of Fenner, Madison Co., N. Y. He was m. Nov. 2, 1764, at Springfield, Mass., to Mary Warner, by Rev. Robert Breck. She was b. Feb. 26, 1746; d. July 11, 1831, in Fenner, N. Y. Both are buried in the old Needham Burying Ground, Town of Fenner, about three miles east of Cazenovia, N. Y. He served in the Revolution from 1776-81 under Col. Woodbridge, Capts. Flowers, Carpenter, and Church, and probably was the Gideon mentioned in Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolution, (Vol. 2, pages 966-67.) He applied for a pension July 16, 1832; his claim was allowed and the D. A. R. of Cazenovia have placed a stone at his grave. About 1806 he moved from Wilbraham, Mass., to Fenner, N. Y., where his son Walter had preceded him. Their first home, a log cabin, was soon changed to a frame house Gideon built, and which is now (1916) occupied by the present owners of the farm. A little to the east is the old red school house where most of his grandchildren attended school. The first house to the west was the home of his daughter, Mary Hatch, where he died, 1836. The Hatch house was built in 1818 by Guy Hatch's father. A great-granddaughter of Gideon's remembers a silhouette of him which showed he wore a queue and had a long prominent nose. She has his "Family Record," which gives his marriage and the births of thirteen children. Unpublished records of Springfield, Mass., name a Gideon Parsons (son of Daniel and Esther Stebbins Parsons) who married Mary Warner and had thirteen children. The date of his marriage, names and birth dates of the children are identical with those on the record above mentioned, proving it to be the same man.

He was educated in the common schools of Wakefield and the Wakefield Academy. From 1842 to 1847 he was a sailor in the merchant service. In 1855 he sailed as first mate with Capt. Samuel Yeaton in a voyage around the world. At the beginning of the Civil War he volunteered in the U. S. Navy as Master's Mate and was promoted through the various grades to rank of Lieutenant. At the close of the war, after examination, he was commissioned a Lieutenant in the regular navy. He was a skilled sailor and an experienced and trusty navigator, and served a large portion of his time as navigating officer on the ships to which he was attached. He was retired for disability in 1884 and returned to his native village, where he died, Oct. 17, 1895. He was a man of unswerving honesty and integrity and won the respect of all with whom he had dealing, while his generosity to those in need will cause his memory to be long cherished in the hearts of those who have received his kindly assistance.

Jackson Holmes, dau. of Rev. Abiel Holmes, D.D., author of "American Annals," and a sister of Oliver Wendell Holmes. She d. in Providence, R. I., having a son Charles William[7] Parsons.

The following sketch is taken from a memoir of Dr. Usher Parsons, written by his son, and from other sources:

"He was born in Alfred, York County, Me., where he passed his boyhood and youth. He attended the village school in the winter and worked on his father's farm in the summer, and later an academy in the vicinity, and his struggles for an education was not unlike that of many other ambitious American young men. With a good elementary education, including Latin and Greek, and something of medicine, he went to Boston, in 1811, and his medical studies were completed under Dr. John Warren, a brother of Genl. Joseph Warren, who fell at Bunker Hill. He was licensed to practice and, July 6, 1812, was commissioned as Surgeon's Mate in the U. S. Navy and commenced service on the frigate John Adams. The war with England was then on, and they were ordered from the Brooklyn Navy Yard to Albany and thence to Buffalo, by wagons and on foot, reaching there Oct. 17.

"In the winter and spring of 1812-13 he was in charge of sick and wounded at Black Rock, near Buffalo, living first in tents and later in barracks. In March, 1813, Capt. Oliver H. Perry arrived at Erie, Pa., to superintend the outfitting of a fleet. In June, Perry came to Black Rock to take to Erie five small merchant vessels armed with one or two guns each, and Dr. Parsons joined Perry and sailed, June 14. On Aug. 12, the little squadron sailed from Erie toward the head of the lake. On the 19th they were visited by Genl. Wm. Henry Harrison, with his aide, Col. Lewis Cass, and other officers. On the 26th they arrived near the mouth of the Detroit River, and thence sailed to Sandusky and anchored among the islands of Put-in-Bay. Many on board were ill of fever, including the Commodore and more than half the officers. The two other surgeons were confined for weeks before and after the battle of Sept. 10th. Dr. Parsons writes in his diary 'I did not escape the attack myself, which confined me two or three days, and during that time more than one hundred lay sick without medical aid.' And he writes further: 'In this weakened condition, with only one doctor in the squadron to attend the sick and take charge of the wounded of a battle, we met the enemy.'"

The following heretofore unpublished letter, in full, will give some account of the battle of Lake Erie, by one who took an active part in it.

(Copy of letter written by Dr. Usher Parsons to his parents):

"Off Lower Sandusky, near Put-in-Bay, and near the head of Lake Erie, on board Brig Lawrence, Sept. 22nd, 1813.

"DEAR PARENTS:

Before the arrival of this an account of our victorious engagement with the British Squadron on this lake will reach you. I can only add a few particulars. Most of the action was supported by this vessel as you will be led to suppose when informed that out of 150 men (our ship's crew) 31 of whom were sick previous to the action, we had rising 80 killed and wounded, among whom were nearly all the officers save the intrepid commander. On board, all the others were about 30 killed and wounded. This vessel supported a disastrous fire from the enemy's two ships on side and a brig astern raking us for two hours all within musket shot, during which we so disabled the ships that when the Commander left the vessel to bring another in to her assistance he succeeded in 15 minutes in making all these strike. It may seem mysterious to one how some of the other vessels could see us slaughtered in such a manner but it is equally so to us. Nor can the commanders of some of them offer satisfactory reasons for remaining behind. Unfortunately for the wounded the two surgeons had been confined for some days with fever and could render them but little assistance. It has, however, operated in my favor as I have had all the amputating to perform and it affords me the greatest pleasure to reflect that in no case have I failed of the best success. This has impressed the Commodore with so favourable an opinion toward me that I have not the least doubt of his rendering me assistance to a better situation. He is the first warm friend I have met with in the service capable of assisting me. I am now on my way in the Lawrence for Erie, having all the sick and wounded on board, and shall continue with them in the hospital 'til the most of them recover, and then intend to shape my course for Cape Horn. Gen. Harrison was on board the Lawrence this morning and his army was on an island within half a mile of the vessel consisting of about 7,000. Tomorrow they cross to Malden, a distance of about 18 miles. Since the loss of the British fleet the Indians have deserted Detroit, after leaving the place and (as is reported) massacring the inhabitants. I had some narrow escapes for my life; during the action five cannon balls passed through the room in which I was attending to the wounded. Two that I had dressed and laid aside were afterwards killed during the action. The enemy's squadron mounted more guns than ours and carried at least one-fourth more men. In the course of a year I hope to obtain a little prize money. * *

Your affectionate son,

USHER PARSONS."

In a letter (or report) to the Secretary of the Navy, Commodore Perry wrote: "Of Dr. Parsons, Surgeon's Mate, I cannot say too much. In consequence of the disability of both the other surgeons, Drs. Horsely and Barton, the whole duty of operating, dressing and attending nearly one hundred wounded and as many sick devolved entirely on him, and it must be pleasing to you, sir, to reflect that of the whole number wounded only three have died. I can only say that in the event of my having another command, I should consider myself particularly fortunate in having him with me as Surgeon."

In connection with other commissioned officers of the fleet, Dr. Parsons received, by vote of Congress, a silver medal bearing the likeness of Perry and a representation of the battle, with suitable inscriptions. His share of the prize money first gave him a feeling of pecuniary independence, and one of its earliest uses was to pay debts incurred in obtaining his medical education. But a much more important reward of his services on Lake Erie was the warm friendship of Commodore Perry and the commencement of a surgical reputation.

He remained with the fleet at Erie in the care of sick and wounded during 1813 and the spring of 1814, and was commissioned Surgeon, Apr. 15, 1814, but it was dated Sept. 10, 1813, the day of the battle. On June 19, 1814, the fleet sailed under Commodore Sinclair from Erie for Detroit and Lake Huron. In the meantime Perry had been appointed to command the new frigate, Java, building at Baltimore, and was allowed to select his own officers.

He chose several of his companions in the Lake service, and, among others, Dr. Parsons, who, on Dec. 2, 1814, received orders to report to Perry at Baltimore, and he sailed with Perry on the Java during 1815-16, except for short leaves of absence, while in American waters, to visit his parents, at Alfred, Me.

He sailed, Jan. 22, 1816, from Newport, reaching Gibraltar, Feb. 12, as the frigate had been ordered to the Mediterranean to look after American interests in connection with the Barbary States. They remained there, visiting various Mediterranean ports, until the early part of 1817, when they sailed for Newport, reaching there Mar. 3, 1817. In July, 1818, he sailed from Boston as Surgeon on the frigate Guerriere, Capt. Thomas McDonough, for St. Petersburg, carrying out Mr. George W. Campbell, minister to Russia, and thence to the Mediterranean. On account of ill health in July, 1819, he received permission to leave the Guerriere and return to America. The return was leisurely taken through Europe, visiting many places and objects of interest, arriving in Paris Sept. 29. Much time was given to adding to and improving his medical knowledge and in professional study and in purchasing medical books and instruments.

He reached London Dec. 4, 1819, where he continued to take advantage of opportunities for study and to make the acquaintance of many eminent men in the medical profession.

He sailed from Liverpool in a merchant vessel Dec. 28, reaching Boston early in 1820. In May he was ordered to service in the Marine barracks in Charlestown, residing much of the time in Cambridge. In Aug., 1820, he was chosen Professor of Anatomy and Surgery in Dartmouth College. About this time he published, at Cambridge, the "Sailor's Physician," a medical guide for use on merchant vessels. This was sold extensively, its name being changed to "Physician for Ships," and passed through several editions in the years 1824, 1842, 1851 and 1867. In Dec., 1820, he visited the medical schools of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore and heard lectures from the eminent men of that time.

In April, 1822, Dr. Parsons began his long residence in Providence, R. I. He married in Sept., 1822, and in April, 1823, resigned from the Navy. He was appointed Professor of Anatomy and Surgery in the medical school attached to Brown University. He joined the Rhode Island Medical Society in 1823, and in 1837 was elected its President for three years.

He wrote several books on medical subjects and contributed many articles to medical periodicals. In 1843 he visited Europe for the third time, spending some time in London, and more in Paris, where his son was then studying medicine.

From about 1851 he was active for the establishment of a hospital in Providence, and his efforts resulted in the founding of the hospital in 1863, under a charter granted by the legislature.

Although he had a large practice as a physician, and particularly as a surgeon, his activities were not confined to his profession.

He was interested in Colonial history, and genealogy, particularly of the Parsons and allied families. In 1855 he published the Life of Sir William Pepperell, who, because of his successful capture of Louisburg, was the only native of New England who was created a baronet during the colonial period. The book was republished in England in 1856.

His memoir, a pamphlet of seventy-two pages, written in 1870, is intensely interesting, not only to medical men but also to the general reader, and this sketch is only a brief outline of its contents.

It contains also a list of his known publications, fifty-eight in number, from 1809 to 1867. He died Dec. 19, 1868, aged 80 years, 4 months.

On June 1, 1869, Hon. Samuel G. Arnold, President of the Rhode Island Historical Society, read a discourse on the services of three members of the society who had recently died and the following is from the part referring to Dr. Parsons:

"He was a man in whom the love of country was strongly marked, and whose fidelity to the flag never failed in the darkest hours. His was a genial temperament and a kindly heart, with much of the jovial spirit of the seas in his hours of relaxation. We miss his familiar form in these seats at our stated meetings and we miss his cordial greeting and his honest smile in the daily intercourse of life, for there are few families in this city where he was not a welcome guest, and where, during his long residence of nearly half a century among us, his name had not become a household word. Loved in life and honored in death, his memory will be revered by all who value those high qualities of manhood which were united in his character."

From the manuscript records of the Parsons Family, collected by the late Dr. David Parsons Holton, I quote the following:

"In a letter dated from Worthington, Jan. 25, 1865, Maurice Parsons writes: 'My first nine children have all (except one) been teachers of primary schools, and I believe very successful in their occupation. I have at the present time over thirty living grandchildren. Eleven of my children are located west of the Hudson River. I visited and saw them all last fall. I visited E. Howard at Columbus, Ohio. Found all my children good Union men and women, and for sustaining the government and crushing the rebellion, and in good circumstances generally, for which I ought to be devoutly thankful to the good providence of God. I have lived in Worthington thirty-five years.'" Later he removed to Big Rock, Iowa. He died Sept. 5, 1890, at Mechanicsville, Iowa.

The foregoing letter to Dr. Holton was written in Jan., 1865, in the latter days of the Civil War. In the early autumn of that year a memorable reunion of the family occurred at Worthington, Mass. A notice of it appeared in the Hampshire Gazette, from which the following extracts are made:

"One of the most interesting scenes lately witnessed in this mountain town, was a family gathering at the house of Maurice Parsons, Esq. The venerable parents were permitted to welcome to their quiet rural house for the first and only time, all their children, eleven in number, residing in Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Illinois and Iowa, nine of whom are married and had their companions with them. The youngest of the nine (Capt. Elias H. Parsons) came fresh from the service of his country, where he had battled manfully for the flag of the Union, having served as Captain under General Sherman in the long, tedious and perilous march from Atlanta to Savannah, and thence to Richmond. Twenty-three out of thirty-four grandchildren were present. A sumptuous repast was provided in the open air under a temporary bower erected for the occasion. For the abundance of the provisions and tasteful arrangement of the table much credit is due to Mr. J. H. Eager and wife and Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Drury. Abel P. Drury, Esq., presided at the table. The blessing was asked by Rev. Mr. Bisbee. Speeches were made by Mr. Bisbee, by Mr. Parsons the venerable patriarch, and by some of the children. The music, both vocal and instrumental, was provided by the blooming bride of the young Captain (recently married) and by her sister, Miss Hattie Giesy, and others, and in the evening by Bryant's band from West Chesterfield. It was indeed an occasion long to be remembered by parents and children. The following Sabbath found them to the number of about forty-five seated in one body in the house of prayer where the children in early years had gathered. Here once more they heard the familiar voice of their pastor (Mr. Bisbee), who instructed and counseled them in childhood. May this happy family be found unbroken at the last great gathering, and there may the father be able to say, 'here am I and the children which thou gavest me.'"

Dec. 4, 1785; d. June 23, 1876, son of Samuel and Jerusha (Phelps) Clark of Northampton. He was a farmer; was widely known and greatly esteemed. In 1882 she removed with her son Rev. Edward Clark to Springfield. In 1880 she wrote a sketch entitled, "Things that I remember at 95," printed in pamphlet form for private distribution. In it she says, "I distinctly remember hearing the bells toll for Washington, and they tolled a long, long time." She also mentioned interesting incidents connected with her life as a girl in Northampton, and of those who then lived there (a beautiful picture of early New England life) and her life after marriage in Chesterfield and Skaneateles, including her golden wedding. The incidents attending their golden wedding are graphically described by her niece, Mrs. Elizabeth (Edwards) Gifford, in "Our Patronymics," mentioned earlier.

108 FESTUS[6] PARSONS (Gideon[5], Daniel[4], Daniel[3], Esq. Joseph[2], Cornet Joseph[1]), b. Jan. 31, 1784, at Wilbraham, Mass.; d. June 6, 1853; m. Oct. 26, 1813, Betsy[6] Towne, tenth child of Absalom[5] Towne (Elisha[4], Jacob[3], Jacob[2], William[1]) of Topsfield, Mass., and Judith[9] Hale (Abner[8], Capt. Joseph[7], Thomas[6], Thomas[5], Thomas[4], William[3], Richard[2], Thomas[1]) of Boxford, Mass. ("Descendants of William Towne," by Edwin Eugene Towne, (1901), p. 50, and "Hale Genealogy," p. 213). They were m. at Paris, N. Y., near Utica, N. Y. Her sister, Mehitable, had previously m. Walter[6] Parsons, brother of Festus[6], and her brothers, Phineas, David and Abel Towne, had settled on neighboring farms in Fenner, N. Y. In 1806 Festus[6] had come with his parents, Gideon[5] and Mary (Warner) Parsons, from Wilbraham, Mass., to Fenner, N. Y. He enlisted in the New York State Militia, 129th Regt., Aug. 15, 1807, serving under Capt. Arnold Button and Col. Jabish H. M. Hurd. He re-enlisted Sept. 7, 1812, serving under Capt. Elijah M—— and Col. Samuel

Dutton. He enlisted in the New York Infantry, 129th Regt., Mar., 1814, and July, 1816, serving as Ensign and Lieutenant respectively under Col. Elisha Farnham. A great-granddaughter of Festus has the original Commissions, the last two being signed by Daniel D. Tompkins, then Governor of New York State. She also has ornaments from his uniform and the old-fashioned hymn book he had when a member of the church choir. On one occasion he was obliged to join his regiment at Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., in haste, leaving his wife with their first baby, Fanny, only four days old. It was this baby, grown to womanhood, that carefully preserved her father's papers until her death, 1899; giving one to a nephew in Iowa, and the other four to a sister to keep for the great-granddaughter, who now has them.

Betsy (Towne) Parsons was a thrifty housewife, spinning and weaving "blue coverlets" for all her daughters, teaching them to embroider ruffling, and make lace, samples of all of which are used to-day by a great-grandchild, together with the big flour barrel made of a hollow log, the large chest and many other things, the work of her sons, and her brothers, the Townes.

Festus[6] and Betsy Parsons remained with his parents until the mother, Mary Warner, d. in 1831. The father, Gideon[5], then lived with his daughter, Mrs. Guy Hatch. Festus[6] and Betsy Parsons moved to North Manlius, N. Y., and soon after to Kirkville, N. Y., where they are buried. Their home is still standing, but is moved back from the street and used as a shop.

RICHARD HENRY[6] PARSONS (Col. Eli[5], Aaron[4], Daniel[3], Esq. Joseph[2], Cornet Joseph[1]), b. Jan. 30, 1794, at Springfield or Cherry Valley, Otsego County, N. Y.; d. Apr. 30, 1869, at Eugene, Ore. He m. at Hallowell, Ont., Jan. 6, 1817, Harriet Ludington; b. at Warren, Herkimer Co., N. Y., Oct. 18, 1798; d. at Eugene, Ore., Jan. 11, 1873. He resided for several years at Oswego, N. Y., then at Scipio, Seneca Co., Ohio; then to Lake Co., Ind. In March, 1853, he and his children with their families, together with several other families, started for the Oregon Territory, the whole company, with their ox and horse teams and covered wagons, making a large caravan. The journey took about six months. The route was through Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, but then all west of the Missouri River was known as Indian Territory, following in the main Platte River and its branches to the mountains across the Rocky Mountains to a point on the Columbia River and down the river to the vicinity of Eugene, where he settled.

One of the women of the family kept a diary of the long journey, which tells of the country through which they journeyed; their trials and hardships, and how they and their animals subsisted. It was then beyond the Missouri River, a country without settlement, except at the forts, or Indian reservations, and over which roamed the buffalo, antelope, deer and wolves, and the Indians who were at times hostile.

He was Justice of the Peace at Eugene in its early days and later Collector of Customs and Postmaster. The following is an extract from an obituary notice published in the Pacific Christian Advocate of Portland, Ore., of May 29, 1869:

"Richard H. Parsons, of Eugene City, Lane County, Oregon, departed this life in full prospect of immortal glory, April 30, 1869, aged 75 years and 3 months. Deceased was born in Springfield, Otsego County, N. Y. His last illness of some four months duration was very severe, had been gradually failing in health for several months before his death, and had in the meantime almost lost his eyesight; consequently was obliged to close up his business transactions, although his mind was strong and vigorous, and his capacity for business as clear and good as ever. Father Parsons, as he was familiarly called by all classes, was a kind and genial Christian man; always a cheerful and pleasant greeting for friends and acquaintances, even down to the little ones, and was beloved and respected by all who knew him. Father of a large family, he, with the most of them, in the year 1853, emigrated from Lake County, Indiana, to Oregon. After enduring the hardships of crossing the Plains, and seeking in these western wilds a home for himself and his, he finally settled with his children and grandchildren around him in Eugene City, where he resided until called to the City above."

George Bliss filled a large place not only in his native Northampton but in New York, the home of his adoption. As one of his biographers writes:

Digitized by Google

"He came of a good Puritan stock and was a lineal descendant of Thomas Bliss who was driven from England by religious persecution and settled in Braintree, Mass. In 1635."

Mary Bliss, a daughter of Thomas, was the wife of Cornet Joseph Parsons (see Vol. 1, pp. 40 and 44), and the mother of George Bliss was Martha[5] Parsons in the 5th generation from Cornet Joseph. His youth was like most farmer boys of his time, but at sixteen he was a clerk in a dry goods store in New Haven, at twenty-one he was a partner with Mr. Sanford the proprietor of the store, and whose daughter he married in 1840. In 1844 he went to New York City and became a member of the dry goods firm of Phelps, Chittenden & Bliss, of 12 Wall St. In 1850 it became the firm of Chittenden, Bliss & Co., at 73 Broadway, and in 1853 with C. G. Landon and James H. Dunham and others was formed the firm of George Bliss & Co., at Park Place, and later at 340 Broadway and which later became the firm of Dunham, Buckley & Co. In 1869 Mr. Bliss retired from the dry goods trade, and with Levi Parsons Morton formed the banking firm of Morton, Bliss & Co. (see Vol. 1, page 234), in which firm he continued until his death. He was a director and vice president of the U. S. Trust Co., and a director of the D. L. & W. R. R., Greenwich Savings Bank, the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway, the Manhattan El. Rway., the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis R. R., the Mutual Life Ins. Co., the Atlantic Mutual Ins. Co., the Continental Ins. Co., the U. S. Lloyds and the Western Union Tel. Co. He was also interested in and gave much attention to the Woman's Hospital, the Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled, the Protestant Half Orphan Asylum and the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society. He built St. John's Episcopal Church in Northampton and another church for the use of those in the Poor House on Blackwell's Island, New York City. In religion, an Episcopalian; in politics, a Republican, but not a partisan. In all things a man of marked intelligence and integrity, and who exerted a large influence upon the life of New York during his active career. In one of the notices of his death appear these words:

"George Bliss was never other than a modest, unostentatious man, caring very little for what the world calls society, preserving his own quiet but decided individuality, and level-headed manhood, among all the honors, emoluments and flattering attentions that great wealth brings, and his heart never grew cold and callous to the needs of those less fortunate, general benevolence being a marked characteristic."

Mr. Bliss was a member of the Union League, Lawyers, Century, Union and Metropolitan Clubs, the New England Society, the American Museum of Natural History and the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

"He was a man of great force of character, developed by living in a new country where problems of every-day existence had to be met and wrestled with. He possessed the quick wit and sharp tongue characteristic of the Parsons family, but was the personification of kindness and hospitality. Very early in life he showed his sense of responsibility to his country and the community where he lived. He enlisted in the War of 1812 as a private, was made Sargent in Capt. Hezekiah Scovill's Co., Col. Richard Coe and McCarthy's Regt., N. Y. State Militia, as per pension papers. In the early thirties he served as side judge for three years and in 1837 was elected to the office of justice of the peace, which office he held until 1862 or 1863. At this time he retired from public life, but until his death his counsel was sought on all important public affairs."

He was unable to enlist in the Union Army during the Civil War on account of infirmities, but he sent three of his sons, William, Charles and Dayan, who served with distinction to the end of the conflict. He resided at Leyden, N. Y., where his children were born.

versity of Georgia; was ordained in 1835 at Ramah Church, N. C. In 1844 he was pastor of the Sugar Creek Church. In 1845 he removed to Rome, Ga., and organized a Presbyterian Church there, of which he was pastor until 1856, when he became President of the Rome Female College, and its proprietor in 1863. He died Sept. 21, 1892. Mrs. Caldwell was educated at the Troy (N. Y.) Female Seminary under Mrs. Emma Willard, and became a teacher in Caswell County, N. C., in a boarding school for girls, conducted by Rev. Mr. Richard, where she met Rev. J. M. M. Caldwell, whom she married in 1844. A year later they removed to Rome, Ga., the chief town of Cherokee (now Floyd County), from which the Indians had only recently been removed to the reservation. She was a woman of rare intellectual powers and great administrative ability. She devoted her life to teaching; first in a private school for girls, and then for more than thirty years in the Rome Female College in what was practically a frontier settlement, and it would be hard to overestimate the part played by this noble and cultured Christian lady in the upbuilding of the whole section of the State of Georgia, in which her life work was spent. Her school was a centre of refinement and culture, and when the College was organized it soon became a power in the land, and the rude pioneer hamlet grew into a prosperous and cultured city. Her work extended over forty laborious years, and she entered into rest in the scene of her labors at Rome, Ga., June 8, 1886, in the midst of hundreds of grateful hearts who attributed to her influence, example and tuition much of their own happiness and success in life.

On Oct. 6, 1903, there was dedicated at Alfred, Me. the "Parsons Memorial Library" to the memory of Edwin[7] Parsons, built and endowed by his brothers, Rev. John[7] Parsons, George[7] Parsons and Charles[7] Parsons. As part of the exercises an address was delivered by Hon. D. H. Chamberlain, ex-Governor of South Carolina and for many years the legal adviser and personal friend of Edwin Parsons, from which address I have taken the liberty of making extracts indicative of his life and character.

"Edwin Parsons was born at Alfred, Me., Apr. 25, 1823. His descent was in direct line and in the seventh generation from Joseph Parsons, who coming from England settled in Springfield in 1636. His ancestry includes many notable names in New England history—an ancestry marked through all its generations by the strong and sterling qualities of industry, perseverance, enterprise, self reliance and public spirit. He attended the public schools of his native town, with a few weeks attendance at the Alfred Academy.

"In 1841 at the age of eighteen he spent a year as clerk in a mercantile house in Boston. A year later in 1842 he was for a year in the employ of Joseph Story Fay at Savannah, Ga., in the firm of Padelford & Fay, cotton merchants.

"In 1847 at Savannah he became connected with the firm of Carhart and Scott, and three years later the firm was succeeded by that of Edwin Parsons and Company, a cotton commission house. He continued in this business till 1856 when he removed to New York where he remained in business for nearly forty years. He died at New York August 21, 1895.

"Mr. Parsons was a practical business man. What he did he did with his own hands, of his own force, and by his own brain. He was as clearly self made as any one at this period of time can be.

"I do not know that circumstances specially hindered Edwin Parsons. He had perfect health, clean habits, fine judgment and a friendly spirit, but he had absolutely no place or standing in the society he entered, except what he made for himself; no doors swung on golden or other hinges to welcome him; alone, unaided except from within, he made his way. The success he sought he gained, gained it because he bent his energies steadily through full fifty years to his task, the task he had himself imposed.

"And when success was won the charm and beauty of the man's character stood revealed. The simplicity of personal manner, the native kindliness of spirit, the unostentatious helpfulness of hand and heart; in a word the great strong gentle elements which were in him, when a poor boy he began his career, remained with him and beautified his character and life to the close.

"Fixed, inflexible business principles and habits colored his thoughts, and moulded his opinions, in many, if not all directions. One of the most dominating convictions was that of mercantile honor, the sacredness of contracts, duly and fairly made; the obligation of every man, at whatever personal hardship or sacrifice, to pay his honest debts.

"These rules and principles he extended equally to the Nation, to states, to municipalities, to all corporate and business organizations. The questions underlying these principles, their many applications, the unnumbered subterfuges contrived to avoid their grip, especially after the (Civil) war, all were made matters of profound attention and study by Mr. Parsons. They led him into much long-drawn litigation. So great and widely experienced a lawyer as Benjamin R. Curtis once told me that he had rarely, if ever, had a client who understood his cases so thoroughly, and Judge Curtis confessed that in one most important case once argued before the Supreme Court at Washington and decided adversely to him, was induced by Mr. Parsons' masterly analysis of the case written out and printed for Judge Curtis' use, to apply for a reargument, which was granted, and the first decision was annulled and one precisely opposite in tenor and effect was then made.

"His efforts in this class of cases were indefatigable and extended over a period of full twenty-five years after the war; and the cases thus championed by him grew out of his own direct business interests, and were each and all sternly carried by him to final decision.

"These efforts, crowned sometimes with disaster, but oftener with success, had a wider interest to Mr. Parsons than his personal pecuniary stake. He wished to see the law, the constitutional law of our land enforced and vindicated, as it at last was enforced and vindicated, partly in his lifetime and partly since.

"I had the good fortune about the year 1885 to read a private letter addressed to Mr. Parsons by an old business acquaintance for fifty years known well and honorably in business circles in Savannah and Boston—the late Joseph Story Fay, of which I have carried this passage in exact memory through the intervening years: 'I admire your long and costly fight against the repudiators. You ought to be by this time a good constitutional lawyer yourself. I hear that Judge Curtis says you are. At any rate I do not know another man in the whole country who has individually done so much as you have to make reliance on public faith possible.'

"This practical business man, ever following so steadily, I might say so doggedly, his business concerns, had other than business interests; other ideals than mere wealth; other conceptions of the chief end of life than those that ruled in the circles into which his own pursuits drew him. My familiar acquaintance with him gives me the knowledge and right to say that there were at least three broad interests, or directions of thought, which appealed to his nature as well as to his best judgment. I mean Education, Art and Foreign Travel. Years of ordinary business or social contact—such superficial acquaintance as large cities, devoted for the most part to business, or to costly gaieties, can or do only give—might not have discovered these qualities of Mr. Parsons, the more need and propriety that on setting up this memorial of him, his real character, beyond what was apparent to all, should be disclosed.

"When I speak of his interest in Education, I mean mental education of all kinds—not alone what we often loosely call practical education, nor what we, with perhaps equal inaccuracy call liberal education, but education of whatever sort, that trains the mind, braces the will, informs the intellect, and enlarges the mental outlook. A well educated person was what he aimed at, whether trained by experience alone, or in the schools; by the discipline of life's hard contacts and crosses, or by the discipline of linguistic and mathematical courses of Study. It gives me here genuine pleasure to record that on the subject of college education so-called, he was never led astray by the cheap notion that such training is impractical, and does not help to success in business life. Over and over I have heard him say: 'The best education is none too good'; 'Give the boy all the chances for education that he will improve, and then put him to work. If there is any good in him, he will have the tools for his work and his good qualities will come out'; 'Never cut short the education of a boy or girl, unless necessity compels it.'

"Perhaps a rarer (I use the word here in both its senses) quality or attainment of Mr. Parsons was his love and knowledge of Art, by which I mean works of painting and sculpture. He has told me that for several years closely following the war, he made a study, here and in Europe, of Art, more particularly paintings.

"He was not a collector of works of Art. He once remarked to me: 'I think it rather a misfortune when great pictures fall into private hands. Turner's "Slave Ship" in a private parlor on Fifth Avenue is an example. I don't like the picture, though Ruskin does; but it ought to be in a public gallery.'

"In the matter of Art Mr. Parsons' habitual modesty was specially in evidence. Not only did he not intrude the subject; he was with difficulty drawn into conversation, still less into discussion, on the topic. This reticent modesty was, of course, the clearest token of the deep hold art had upon him. It would have been easy to have moved with a crowd, to have been known as a connoisseur or collector, but to cultivate art in silence and for its own sake, is a quality or achievement as unique as it is admirable.

"Of the value of Foreign Travel a word should now be said. It was not till he was past thirty years of age that he had the privilege himself. His complete devotion to business kept him from this, to his permanent great regret.

"I recall as if it were spoken but yesterday, or to-day, his remark to me in 1878 when at the age of forty-three I was about to make my first visit to Europe,—'I wish' said he with feeling—

Digitized by Google

'that when I had made my first ten thousand dollars, I had taken one thousand of it for a visit to Europe.' I once asked him, as he was preparing for a trip through British America whether he had taken European travel by design before American travel. He replied that with him it had been very much a matter of convenience, the great American transcontinental railways not having been built in the days of his early European travels; 'but' he added, 'I have thought of your question, and I have formed the opinion that European travel should come, to some extent, first. My reason is that it not only makes us broader in our views to see other lands, but it gives a standard of comparison, makes us see what is good in our own, and what is bad.' To this he added with a shrewd smile 'I never knew a really good American, * * * * * who was spoiled or hurt by going to Europe.'

"The life I have recalled so faintly and imperfectly was an open book, to be read of all men who cared to read. It was a straight life, without indirections, or concealments, or false pretences. It was a modest, but self-reliant, life. It was a life successful according to its great aim. It was a beneficent life while it was being lived, and its beneficence will shine more and more as men come more and more to feel and know that the plain virtues—industry, integrity, honor, good faith, generosity, kindliness of spirit, practical helpfulness to others—entitle the most unassuming of men to the lasting remembrance of his fellow-men."

Nov. 1, 1826, at Alfred, Me.; m. at Fall River, Mass., Dec. 13, 1865, Sarah Elizabeth Eddy, daughter of Lucius Junius and Louisa Maria (Pratt) Eddy of Eddyville, Middleboro, Mass. He d. in New York City, Dec. 4, 1907. She d. at Kennebunk, Me., Oct. 28, 1918. Throughout boyhood and his whole business life George Parsons was closely associated with his older brother Edwin. In 1848 Edwin Parsons entered the office of Carhart & Scott, cotton merchants of Savannah, Ga., and in 1845 George Parsons joined his brother in the same office.

In 1846 Mr. Scott having moved to Macon, Ga., the firm took the name of Edwin Parsons & Co. The firm prospering, it was decided in 1856 to open an office in the North;—Edwin Parsons took charge of the New York office and the Savannah firm then took the name of George Parsons & Co.

They were the principal owners of the Bank of Middle Georgia (Macon, Ga.) and by forwarding to it large amounts of gold enabled it to maintain specie payments in 1857 when nearly every other bank suspended such payments.

In 1861 before the beginning of the Civil War the funds of the bank were forwarded to Baring Brothers in London, and to New York; and, due to this foresight, the Bank of Middle Georgia when wound up after the war, redeemed all its bills and obligations and paid its stockholders two hundred dollars for each one hundred dollars of stock—a result not equalled by any other Southern bank.

In 1861 war being imminent, the brothers contracted their credits and invested their funds largely in cotton, which was shipped to Liverpool. The Savannah office was closed in 1861 and not again reopened; the New York office remained open during the war.

On December 13, 1865, Mr. Parsons was married in Fall River, Mass., to Sarah Elizabeth Eddy, daughter of Lucius Junius and Louisa Maria (Pratt) Eddy, of Eddyville, Middleboro, Mass., who was born January 12, 1838. They had three sons and four daughters.

After the Civil War Edwin and George Parsons made their headquarters in New York City and gave their attention to their railroad and mining interests.

They were interested in the development of the iron district of Michigan, and particularly in the Champion and the Republic mines.

At an early period in the development of the iron and coal district surrounding Birmingham, Ala., George Parsons became interested in that section and was a strong believer in its great future—a belief which has been fully justified by the marvelous growth of Birmingham. He had interests in several coal companies, and also in the Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Company, one of the largest of the iron producing companies.

George Parsons for many years was President of the street railway companies operating the principal city and suburban railways of Savannah, Ga., and under his charge this was one of the early systems to adopt electricity as a motive power.

In 1902 Mr. Parsons became interested in the development of Sheffield, Ala., and built there an interurban railway, a light and power plant and water works for Sheffield and Tuscumbia, and in connection with this work he actively assisted in forwarding the development of the great water power which exists in the Tennessee River near Sheffield.

He was a director of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg Railroad; the South Carolina & Georgia Railroad; the Virginia-Midland Railway; the Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co., and various other successful companies.

Mr. Parsons as a young man was very fond of hunting and fishing, and often went for such purposes to Wassaw Island on the coast of Georgia, near Savannah.

Later on he bought this island and built there a winter home, and as many of his business interests were in the South, each year for over forty years he spent a portion of his time on Wassaw.

Mr. Parsons was a genial man with a keen sense of humor and enjoyed the companionship of his friends. He was especially fond of his relatives and throughout his life kept in touch with many of his cousins who had moved to distant parts of the country.

Although much of his time was necessarily spent in other parts of the country, Kennebunk was his home and it was there that he spent as much of his time as he could—interested in the town and its inhabitants and enjoying the companionship of his friends and neighbors.

Mr. Parsons lived to complete his 81st year.

On the first day of December, 1907, he became ill with pneumonia and passed away December 4, 1907.

A man's character can be best judged from the opinions of those with whom he has been associated, and the compiler of this book wishes to include in this sketch the following extracts from resolutions passed by the citizens of Sheffield, Ala., at a public meeting called to take action on the death of Mr. Parsons:

"Be it resolved by the citizens of Sheffield, Ala., that in the death of Mr. George Parsons our town has lost a wise counselor and friend; that his life, combining honesty with success, and modesty with greatness, is worthy of emulation.

"That his character and his high and generous ideals of business integrity as reflected in the dealings of The Sheffield Company and its allied institutions, have added moral tone to Sheffield, and have elevated our standard of citizenship; and these will remain as a rich legacy to our people, though he has passed from among us.

"We recognize and deplore the great loss to this community, and we wish to express our high admiration of his character. Mr. Parsons' connection with our little city has been in every direction for its upbuilding and betterment, he has shown himself our strong and true friend. His association with the history of Sheffield has been a blessing to all.

"The simplicity of his character and the modesty of his conduct stamped him as a man of unusual greatness. As a community we mourn his loss and tender to his family our sincere sorrow."

Mrs. Parsons survived her husband for eleven years and died in Kennebunk, Me., October 28, 1918.

The following was written by Margaret Deland with reference to Mrs. Parsons:

"A gentle, generous and gracious presence has been taken away from us. On Wednesday as her friends and neighbors gathered under her hospitable roof, and then followed the flower laden casket through the mist to the old cemetery in Kennebunk, some of us were saying to ourselves 'We are all poorer because Mrs. Parsons has died,' but might have added 'We are all richer because she has lived.' Her justice, her kindness, her truthfulness, her modesty of mind, her gallant patience, are still ours, not only to remember, but to incorporate into our own lives.

"I do not think she realized how fully she gave us these gifts of the spirit;—noble and simple people rarely do realize how much they mean to their fellows.

"Certainly Mrs. Parsons did not know that because of her courage, some of us who knew her will find it easier to be brave; because of her straightforwardness, we shall be franker; because of her gay patience in these long weary months of illness, we shall be ashamed to complain of small discomforts; because she never thought of self, perhaps we, too, may be more unselfish. In her humility she never understood the richness of this gift to us, of high example.

"But that group of people in the cemetery standing in the mist under the leafless trees, and all the people in our little community, and many, many people in other communities (for her life was a very wide one)—we at any rate know what that example was and is.

"We know with what serenity and faith she fulfilled the three Great Requirements—to do justice, to love mercy and to walk humbly before the Lord our God."

221 CHARLES[7] PARSONS (William[6], William[5], Rev. Joseph[4], Rev. Joseph[3], Esq. Joseph[2], Cornet Joseph[1]), son of William[6] and Mary[7] (Parsons) Parsons, b. at Alfred, Me., Feb. 6, 1829; m. Oct. 25, 1855, Sarah Johnson Shepley, daughter of Rev. David and Myra (Nott) Shepley. He d. in New York City, Oct. 18, 1904. Mrs. Parsons d. June 22, 1914, at Kennebunk, Me. He spent his boyhood chiefly in Alfred and Kennebunkport, Me., receiving his early education in the local schools and at Yarmouth (Me.) Academy.

In 1850 he went to Providence where he completed his education, residing with his uncle, Dr. Usher[6] Parsons, of that city.

Charles Parsons, at the age of 23, started on a trip to Cuba. The steamer touched at Key West to deliver the mail, and he landed there and remained in Key West a month.

About the time he landed an English vessel, the Cambyses, bound from New Orleans to Liverpool with a cargo of cotton, put into Key West on account of the illness of her captain, and while making port she struck a reef. Although she sustained no injury she was condemned by the islanders, dismantled and sold in several parcels.

Mr. Parsons through agents purchased the ship, and in a few days had the vessel refitted, purchased a cargo of cotton at auction, put it on board, obtained American papers for the Cambyses and dispatched her under the American flag to New York where his agents, Brigham & Carhart, sold both vessel and cargo at a profit. The parties instrumental in having the vessel illegally condemned at Key West were much annoyed that a young stranger should purchase and send the vessel away.

This was an early evidence of Mr. Parsons' quickness to grasp business matters.

During the winter of 1853-54 he resided in New Orleans and was engaged in shipping Southern products to Northern markets. From 1854 until 1861 he was engaged in the commission business in Savannah, Ga., and two days before Savannah was blockaded he dispatched three vessels to foreign ports and the same night left with his family for the North by the only railroad that had not been destroyed by the Confederate army.

In 1862 he entered into partnership with his brother Edwin Parsons in New York City where he afterwards resided. In 1880 Mr. Parsons was chairman of the Purchase Committee of the New Jersey Midland Railway Company, which bought the road at the sale under foreclosure. He reorganized it successfully and was its president for about a year. In 1883 he was elected president of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg Railroad, which office he held until his death.

His success in the management of this road was marked. In five years from the time he took charge the road was entirely relaid with steel and the property brought to trunk line standard. While under his management, the mileage was increased by the purchase of the Syracuse, Phoenix & Oswego Railway, the building of the Norwood & Montreal R. R., the lease and consolidation of the Utica & Black River R. R. and the purchase of the Rochester & Ontario Belt Railway.

When Mr. Parsons took charge of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg Railroad it barely earned its fixed charges. In four years the company was earning 10% on the stock, dividing 6% among its stockholders and putting the balance into permanent betterments. The annual earnings per mile increased from $3500 to about $6000, and under Mr. Parsons' management the stock became a regular 6% dividend security.

In 1892 he was elected president of the New York & New England Railroad Company, which office he held for a year. In 1894 with his brother George Parsons he purchased from a Reorganization Committee the South Carolina Railway, and organized a new company under the name of South Carolina & Georgia Railroad Company, which Mr. Parsons took charge of as president. In 1896 he was elected chairman of a committee to reorganize the Ogdensburg & Lake Champlain R. R. Company and in March, 1897, he was appointed receiver of the road. He was also one of the committee appointed in March, 1897, to reorganize the Brooklyn, the Union and the Seaside Railroads of Brooklyn and New York.

Mr. Parsons was naturally a reticent man, he made no boasts of his achievements. He quietly met the issues of life as they arose, always adjusting his talent and energies to the exigencies of duty and thereby mastering the vast majority of circumstances.

Mr. Parsons was a member of the Lawyers' Club, the New York Chamber of Commerce, the New York Historical Society, the American Geographical Society, and several other similar associations. For twenty-five years he was an attendant of the Rev. Doctor Howard Crosby's church and served many years on the Board of Trustees. He was a member of the New York Stock Exchange for many years.

Mr. Parsons' New York home was at the corner of 40th Street and Park Avenue; his country residence was at Crescent Surf, Kennebunk, Me.

Home Insurance Co. of New York, and was connected with it for more than fifty years. He became Assistant Secretary, 1865-1867; Vice-President, 1886; President, 1901; resigned in 1904, and was elected Chairman of the Board of Directors, which position he held until his death in 1909. He had a national reputation as an authority on fire insurance. Among the many offices of honor and trust held by him were President of the Tariff Association of New York, President of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, President of the Association of Western Underwriters, President of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the American Missionary Association from 1881 to 1892. He was a member of the Lotus Club, the City Club, the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade and Transportation, the New England Society, the Sons of the Revolution, The Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Order of Founders and Patriots and the Society of Descendants of Colonial Governors. But his activities and influence were not confined to business. From adult years to his death he was an active and earnest Christian, being for forty-four years a member of Broadway Tabernacle, its Treasurer from 1869 to 1878, and a Deacon from 1878 to his death. He owed much to sturdy and pious New England stock. His father, Rev. Royal Washburn, was for many years pastor of the Congregational Church of Amherst. His mother was a daughter of Rev. David Parsons, D.D., a predecessor of his father as pastor of the Amherst Church.

The following extract from an obituary notice gives a contemporary estimate of his life and character:

"Opposite and apparently contradictory elements were in him united. He was gentle, but he was as strong as he was gentle. He was tender, but he was also remarkably firm. Where principle was at stake he was unflinching and absolutely inflexible. Masculine virility and feminine sensitiveness were blended in him. He had that winsomeness and charm which it is so easy to feel and so difficult to define. Always affable and courteous, he made friends everywhere. There was a fineness of moral texture in him, and a refinement of spirit which reported itself in his face and voice. His mind was cultured, his heart sympathetic and loving, his spirit radiant. His daily life proved that he had been with Him who is the fairest of ten thousand, the one altogether lovely."

(From the Eleventh (1910) Edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica.)

William Brewster, born in Scrooby, Nottinghamshire, Eng., about 1566. In 1606 he, with others, organized at Scrooby a Separatist Church. Because of persecution, and in 1608, he, with other Separatists, removed to Holland to enjoy greater freedom of worship. At Leiden, in 1609, he was chosen ruling Elder of the Congregation. There, too, they were persecuted at the instance of the British Embassador, Sir Dudley Carleton. Brewster, however, returned to England, and, with Robert Curchman, obtained in London, on behalf of his associates, a land patent from the Virginia Company, and in 1620 he emigrated to America in the Mayflower, and was one of the founders of the Plymouth Colony. Here, besides continuing to act until his death as ruling Elder, he was also—regularly until the arrival of the first Pastor, Ralph Smith, in 1629, and irregularly thereafter—a "teacher," preaching "both powerfully and profitably to the great contentment of ye hearers and their comfortable Edification." By many he is regarded as pre-eminently the leader of the Pilgrims. He probably died April 10, 1644, and has been known in history as "Elder Brewster."

Cyrus Mason[7] Parsons spent his early life in Chesterfield and Worthington, Mass., where he received his early education. He was a teacher in Charlton, Malden Bridge and Syracuse, N. Y., and later in Indiana and Iowa. About 1850 he located at Big Rock, Iowa, about twenty-five miles northwest of Davenport, and two years later returned to Worthington to marry the waiting bride. The same day (Sept. 2, 1852) his brother, Francis Janes[7] Parsons, married Aurelia Blackman, and the two couples immediately started for their Iowa homes, going by railroads to Chicago and from there by canal boat and ox teams. Their first home was the usual log house, but followed in two years by a more comfortable frame dwelling, and there they lived until 1861, when they sold and bought a new prairie farm nearer the settlement at Big Rock. There they lived for nearly forty years, and in these two homes their seven children were born and taught to love God, their neighbor and their country; and there all who came beneath their roof were welcomed to a generous hospitality. Here he was Justice of the Peace, a Deacon in the Congregational Church, a School Director, the upright citizen, and the intelligent and successful farmer. In 1899 the old farm was sold and they lived for a time in Pasadena, Cal., then a brief residence in Tabor, Iowa, and in Salt Lake City, Utah, and then returned to California, settling in Claremont in 1903. The fiftieth anniversary of their marriage was celebrated in Tabor, Iowa, and the sixtieth in Pasadena at the Hotel Maryland, attended by about sixty relatives and friends. His ninetieth birthday, which was after his wife's death, was celebrated at the home of his niece, Mrs. Mary Amanda (Parsons) Gates, in South Pasadena. He had a marked personality, patriarchal in appearance, dignified, but kindly and cordial in manner, and these periodical gatherings were but the natural expression of the kindly, reverent and loving regard of his descendants and many friends. In politics he was identified with the Republican party almost from its beginning, but his later years were devoted to Prohibition. His death at ninety-two was caused by a railroad accident at a time when his health and vigor promised many more years of activity and usefulness.

Dec. 16, 1847, in Indiana, Thomas Belshaw; b. Aug. 25, 1825, in the village of Keyworth, Nottingham, England; son of George and Elizabeth (Archer) Belshaw, and came to America, May, 1834, with his parents, in a large sailing vessel named Herrold, after a passage of five weeks and two days, landing in New York, June, 1834, and at once went to Laporte County, Ind. In 1843 they removed to Lake County, Ind., where he married Maria A. Parsons. They resided there until March, 1853, when they emigrated to Oregon, arriving in Willamette Valley, Sept. 24, 1853, settling near Corvallis, Benton County, where they remained until December, then moved to Eugene, Lane County. They lived in Eugene with the exception of several years in Cresville in the same county, also a few years on a farm about four miles north of Eugene, where he died Oct. 12, 1890. He was a charter member of the Eugene Baptist Church, Superintendent of the Sunday Schools in Eugene and Cresville, also of the little Sunday School in the country. He was a druggist by profession and carpenter by trade. His father, George Belshaw, belonged to a Brigade in England where men had to be over six feet high, but he never saw active service. On the journey across the plains from Indiana to Oregon Mrs. Belshaw kept a diary in which was carefully noted the happenings of each day, the nature of the country through which they passed, with interesting comments thereon. She united with the Methodist Episcopal Church when young and was a charter member of that church at Eugene. She was a teacher of the young ladies' class at Eugene. Noted for her Christian character, she was ever ready to help the needy and afflicted, and always had a word of cheer to those in trouble. She d. at Eugene, Feb. 23, 1897.

The following is an extract from an obituary in a Jamestown paper:

"Mr. Parsons was born in Waterloo, N. Y. In Geneva he was married to Anna, daughter of William Giffing, the well-known silversmith forty-three years ago. After his marriage he removed to Toronto, Ont., where he was the first manager of the Montreal Telegraph Co. In 1848 he removed to Buffalo and took control of a telegraph office, afterwards, at the solicitation of the late W. G. Fargo, entering the employ of the American Express Co., with which he remained about thirty years, until ill health compelled him to cease labor, ever since which he has been on the Company's retired list and pensioned.

"Several years ago Mr. Parsons came to Jamestown where he has since resided, and where his kindness of heart and rectitude have won him a large number of friends. He leaves as a heritage to his children a record for honesty and usefulness which has never been assailed."

Extracts from an obituary of Maj. William Theodore Parsons in a Buffalo paper:

"The deceased was well-known among bankers, but was better known in local military circles. For many years previous to the failure of the Bank of Commerce, about five years ago, he was connected with that institution as corresponding secretary, and was a member of the Bankers' Association. He served in the National Guard of this State for almost twenty years, starting in the 65th Regt., as private, and finally attaining command of a battalion, with the rank of Major. . . . At the outbreak of the Spanish American War, he was among the first to volunteer and went with his regiment to Camp Alger, . . . and later as a regimental quartermaster in the 202d Regt., and was the only commissioned officer who was not in the hospital. His splendid physique sustained him throughout his stay in Cuba, but the seeds of the disease that resulted in his death are believed to have been sown there."

From a history of Easthampton, Mass., by Payson W. Lyman (1866) we get this information as to the Janes family:

William Janes, a native of Cambridge, England, came from Essex, England, to New Haven, Conn., probably about 1638, and in 1654-5 was one of the early settlers of Northampton, Mass. His son Benjamin settled in Easthampton about 1700. The old "Janes-Parsons" house in Easthampton was probably erected by a son of Benjamin, and the father of Obediah Janes, Mass., Florence Sophia Crosby; b. at Williamsburg, Mass., Aug. 1, 1863; daughter of Joshua and Sophia Bartlett (Bodman) Crosby of Williamsburg. Mr. Parsons spent his early life on the Iowa farm, going to the country schools the winter and spring terms, and when older only the winter terms, as from his eleventh year he in many ways was a full farm hand, and at sixteen, because his father had suffered a sunstroke, almost the entire care and labor fell to his lot. At sixteen he united with the Congregational Church at Big Rock. He attended a few terms at Lenox College, Hopkinton, Iowa, and then for five years was a successful teacher. In the fall of 1879 he was in the grain business at Sidney, Ill. In May, 1881, he went to Salt Lake City, Utah, and became the general storekeeper of the Rio Grand Western Railroad during its construction. On the completion of the Railroad, in the spring of 1882, he went into the book and stationery business in Ogden, Utah, with a branch, in July, 1882, in Salt Lake City, and this business continued with marked success until 1898. He had been an active Y. M. C. A. worker during these years, and accepted the General Secretaryship of the Pasadena, California, Association, in which he was very successful for four years. In April, 1909, he organized the Federation of State Societies of Southern California, of which he has since been secretary, with headquarters at Los Angeles, giving his entire attention to this work. It includes over two hundred societies. He has been active in church, Y. M. C. A., and Christian Endeavor work in the various offices of clerk, secretary, deacon, elder, trustee and director, in different denominations. In early life he was a republican in politics, but later an active worker for prohibition. His activity in the many civic, religious, and charitable works has made him well known and highly esteemed throughout the entire sphere of his activities.

(Jacob Millspaugh was b. in 1808, at or near Walden, N. Y.; his wife was b. in 1818 near Pine Bush, N. Y. They resided at Walden and later at Battle Creek, Mich., where both died; he in 1859, she in 1858.) Dr. Millspaugh graduated from the University of Michigan in 1879, degree of A.B., and later A.M. He was a member of the Delta Upsilon and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities. For two years following graduation he was principal of the Frankfort (Ind.) High School. He then studied medicine at the University of Michigan and completed his course in the University of Pennsylvania in 1883, receiving a diploma for special research in pathology, but practiced medicine only a short time. He moved to Salt Lake City, Utah, as teacher in the academic department of the Collegiate Institute of that city, and two years later its Superintendent. In 1890 he became the first Superintendent of the Public Schools of Salt Lake City, until 1898, when he became President of the State Normal School at Winona, Minn. In 1904 he was appointed President of the Los Angeles, Cal., State Normal School, then located at Fifth Street and Grand Avenue. The school increased rapidly under his management and through his efforts ten magnificent buildings were erected on Vermont Avenue to take the place of the old ones, the largest of the group, the administration building, being known as Millspaugh Hall. He continued as President until three years ago, when failing health compelled retirement, as President Emeritus. He has held many important educational positions. He was a member of the Board of Trustees of Carleton College, Minnesota; was a member of the Minnesota State Library Board, and member of the California State Board of Education, and was author of numerous papers and addresses on educational subjects. In 1918 the Los Angeles State Normal School was made the southern branch of the University of California, and Dr. Millspaugh became Dean and held that office in active service until his death, Dec. 12, 1919, at his home at Hollywood, Cal.

(Spencer) George, sends the following tribute: "Our dear mother passed to the unseen world at 72 years of age. She was on her way to a temperance meeting when she was stricken and d. before reaching her home. She, like her sister, Achsah Marie, was a sincere Christian, always thinking of others before self, and was very charitable in her judgment. She was a member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and always wore her badge of white ribbon, the emblem of that order. It was also a great pleasure to her that she had the privilege on the school question."

Jan. 26, 1898, at Akron Ohio, David Marshall Mason of London, England; son of the late Stephen Mason, M. P. for Mid-Lanarkshire. He was b. in 1865, near Glasgow, and was educated at Kelvinside Academy, Glasgow, at Craigmount private school in Edinburgh, at Glasgow University, and in Germany. His business has been manufacturing and finance, and chairman of a large Australian Merchants' Business in London. He has made a life-long study of political economy and has recently founded the Sound Currency Association in the hope of restoring the value of the pound sterling, by deflating the currency and thus helping to correct the unfavorable exchange since the great war. He has represented Coventry in Parliament for eight years, from Jan., 1911, to Dec., 1918.

CHILDREN OF DAVID MARSHALL AND MARY ROBISON[9] (CROUSE) MASON:

i Stephen Parsons[10] Mason, b. Nov. 19, 1898. He volunteered for service in the great war before he became of age, to enter the army. After eight months' training in the Artillery Cadet School at Weedon, Northamptonshire, and at Larkhill, Salisbury Plain, he received his commission as 2d Lieut. in the Royal Field Artillery and proceeded to Swanage, Dorset, to the base camp. In Apr., 1918, he went to France and was sent to the Arras front, which had suffered so badly in the March reverse. But the tables were turned in July and August, and it was in this sector that rapid advance was made, and the so-called impenetrable Hindenburg line was first crossed. His battery fought side by side with the Canadians and entered the long struggled for City of Cambrai about the same time. He came home on first leave at the iii William Augustus[10] Kilmer, b. at Bangor, Mich., Jan. 12, 1900. He entered the U. S. Navy, Dec. 2, 1917. In Mar., 1918, he shipped on the U. S. S. Mount Vernon (former German Liner Crown Printzessen Cecelie). On Sept. 5, 1918, while carrying wounded American soldiers back to the United States, this ship was torpedoed 300 miles west of Brest, killing 38 and wounding 11, and causing a hole 20 by 30 feet in the ship. Good seamanship on the part of the officers and crew, and also due to the water-tight bulkheads resisting the terrific strain, enabled the ship to return to the harbor of Brest twenty hours later. He continued in service on the ship until she went out of commission. He was discharged Sept. 26, 1919.

Page 290—Add to record of Cora Parsons[8] Kessler: In 1914, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Kessler were residing in France, and when the war with Germany started, they gave themselves to work on behalf of the French soldiers, specially in aid of those who had lost eyesight in the service. This work they later continued in New York for a time, then returning to France where their work was continued on behalf of all Allied soldiers blinded in the service. In this connection they gave the use of their residence in the suburbs of Paris and gave of their time and wealth liberally to the work. In July, 1919, she writes: "Our work for the blinded soldiers of the Allies has grown to enormous proportions, and we intend to continue our efforts in behalf of these unfortunate men as long as we are financially and physically able to do so." Both Mr. and Mrs. Kessler have been specially recognized and decorated by the allied governments of Europe. France decorated her with the gold medal of the Epidimics, with the rank of officer, which permits the wearing of a rosette on the red, white and blue ribbon decoration. The Queen of Roumania decorated her with the gold cross of Maria, commander's rank, orange ribbon with rosette. Prince Alexander, Regent of Serbia, gave her the gold cross of Serbia, pale blue ribbon. Italy, a gold medal of gratitude, and Mr. Kessler was decorated by Italy, an officer of the Crown of Italy. Mr. and Mrs. Kessler came to New York in Sept., 1919, in the interest of their work for blind soldiers and sailors and when the King and Queen of Belgium were in New York in October, 1919, the Queen personally decorated Mrs. Kessler with the Order of Elizabeth, and the King decorated Mr. Kessler with Officer of the Order of Leopold Second.

Page 302—Add to the record of Capt. Henry James[8] Nichols, M.D.: At the outbreak of the war with Germany he was a Major in the regular Medical Corps, in the Laboratory Division, on temporary duty at El Paso, Texas; was ordered back to station at San Francisco, and assisted in mustering in California National Guardsmen. In June, 1917, he was ordered to France in charge of the First Army Laboratory; arrived in August and established A. E. F. Laboratory, No. 1, at Neufchateau. In November he was sent home with nervous exhaustion; was on leave a short time and then went on duty in charge of Laboratory Service at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., and was promoted to Lieut. Col. In Oct., 1918, he was on duty in Surgeon General's Office as Inspector of Laboratories in this country, and in Mar., 1919, was ordered to Army Medical School for duty as Assistant Professor of Bacteriology.

Page 303—Add to the record of James Knight Nichols the following: At the outbreak of the war with Germany, he at once became active as a Four-Minute Man, speaking at public meetings in the interest of the government for the war. In Feb., 1918, he was sent to New Orleans as representative of the Intelligence Division of the War Trade Board, doing very effective work, for which he was highly commended. In Oct., 1918, he entered the Officers' Training Camp of the Coast Artillery Service at Fort Monroe, Va. After the signing of the Armistice he wrote to his mother as to his work in New Orleans: "I don't know any reason why you cannot tell your questioners,
